COMMANDER'S MESSAGE

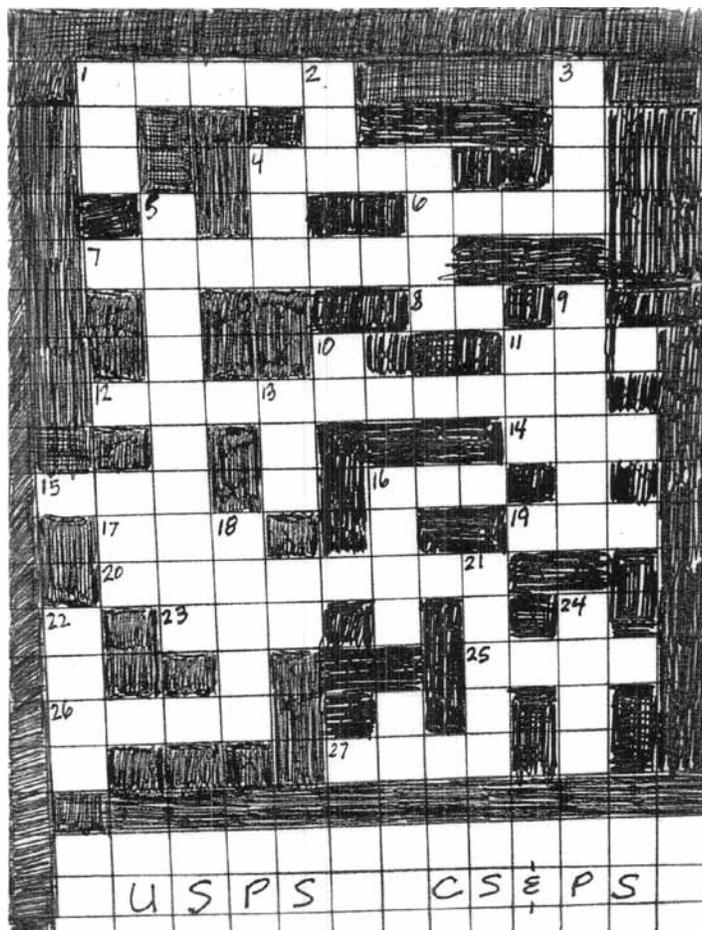

Cdr David Canale, P

Welcome everyone to autumn and the new educational season for CSPS! This month's Galley Gossip includes a lot of information to digest, and so I thought that a little brain exercising might be in order. Therefore, for this issue I have fashioned a crossword puzzle. It's crude and I am not artistically inclined, but it works. I hope you enjoy solving the puzzle. As you do so, please ponder the educational offerings of the squadron and sign up for a course or two to enhance your boating skills! Finally, I have not, like many publications, provided a key to the crossword. But there is a reason. I am offering a prize to a person who correctly solves the puzzle and attends the November Dinner meeting. If more than one person correctly solves the crossword, then a drawing of qualified correct crosswords will be held and the award presented. See you soon!

EXECUTIVE OFFICER

Lt/C Bill Mohrman, AP

Just like a quarterback can't win a game without his teammates, a Captain relies on his crew for a well-run ship.

As I sat on the back of my houseboat this summer, I observed many a captain and crew sail in and out the harbor on Lake Cumberland. Cruisers, ski boats, runabouts, houseboats, from new to boating to old salts, big and little all passed by. One thing that struck me was how by just a glance, you could tell a story, or perhaps envision what type of boater they are.

A little stress of an impending thunderstorm actually shows how well prepared the captain and crew worked together (or not) under less than ideal conditions. I actually marvel at the seasoned boaters that come in and out of port effortlessly. Their crew knows exactly their assignments and performs them with ease. Two cruiser crews in particular move with the precision of a dance company to hang the fenders, attached dock lines, spring lines and stand ready at their station for docking. To them docking and departing is a non-event despite the prevailing winds and obstacles.

In stark contrast is the Captain that does it all himself. You can usually spot them as they enter the harbor completely unprepared. The crew and guests are sitting with not a care in the world while the Captain motors in. At the last minute, he starts barking out commands with his voice level going higher and higher reflecting his increase in stress level. This starts a flurry of activity to find the missing fenders and dock lines and to tie them off. More often than not the Captain leaves the helm to assist the laggard crew digging for lost fenders, lines, etc, leaving an unqualified guest, or youngster to pilot the boat. The Captain can get away with his lack of preparedness on a calm day with minimal boat traffic, but it becomes downright dangerous in less than ideal situations.

So I ask; do you have a qualified crew? By the virtue of being in the squadron we have trained ourselves to be a competent Captain, but have we taken the time to train our crew? Back to the football analogy, a quarterback does not make a team. It is up to the other 10 people on the field to execute their assigned tasks to make it all come together.

Think about training for your team. The squadron has many opportunities in the off “boating” season for your crew to know their assignments and become proficient at them. So bring your crew to take a class or a seminar because boating is a family affair.

ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER

Lt/C John Seaver, JN

Churning into the fall – classes are underway, leaves are turning and opportunities to use our boats are dwindling. As I write this we’ve just completed the September Dinner meeting – the Educational Roundup – and the instructors were active and information shared was plentiful. Be sure to check out our web site for data about our upcoming fall/winter/spring classes and consider taking the next step up in your boating education this fall by enrolling in one of our core courses or an elective course that can help you with Marine Communication, Electrical Systems, Engine Maintenance or Weather.

Our October Dinner meeting is approaching faster than I am prepared for it – on October the 3rd. The good news is – it is once again at our familiar October “Haunt” - We’ll be Oktober-Festing at Schmidt’s Sausage Haus at 240 E. Kossuth St. in German Village. RSVP to me by 9/27 so we can get the right sized room lined up. Check the cover for RSVP procedures.

- Our entertainment for this event is the always compelling – Pam and Doug Jackson, who will be sharing their “Bare Boat Chartering” – presentation. Hopefully others will be available to share their experiences as well.

- Come vote for your favorite in the USPS Boarman Poster contest. This year’s theme, ‘100 Years of Wearing It’, is celebrating the 100th Anniversary of USPS. Winning posters advance to the district conference in November.

- And will we ever be chowing down! Our buffet includes the Famous Smoked Bahama Mama, Pork Bratwurst, Baked Chicken, German Potato Salad, Hot Sauerkraut with Pork, Green Beans with bacon, Chunky Applesauce, Salad, Rolls & Butter. Cost is $18 for Adults and $10 for kids. A full bar is available for individual purchase.

The November dinner meeting location and agenda is pending with a few different options being evaluated.

The SeaGals enjoyed an evening at the races last month at Scioto Downs Racino. Everyone came home with more money than they started with, some by winning and some by borrowing! While the Race Track patio was a bit on the chilly side, the slots were hot and everyone had a great time.

This month is our annual Chilli Cook Off, we are asking each member to bring a pot of chili to share and $5.00 each to Headquarters at 6:30 PM on Friday, October 18th. Bingo is planned by Dave and Sherry with plenty of surprises for the winners!

USCG Class

I have been notified of an opportunity coming in November 2013. The Alum Creek Sail Association and other sister organizations of the CSPS are hoping to assemble enough candidates for a US Coast Guard Captain's License class. This is known as the Six Pack. The cost will be in the range of $700 per student but will be confirmed closer to the offering. If you have interest please email me with your contact information so I can assemble a list. Classes will be held at our Cotter Street HQ. I will keep those with interest updated as more details are available. Although it seems in the distant future I need to start gathering a list as soon as possible. Email P/C Matthew Murphy, JN, at murphyng@insight.rr.com.
